

Calling Cards

The following appears in the Autograph Album of Martha M. Clarke.

To Miss Clarke

Dysart May the 6, 1884

May you dear friend be ever blest with friends selected from the best
And in return may you extend
A gram of friendship to each friend

-----00000-----

May heaven's choicest blessings
Around thy pathway glow
And may your soul rejoice in heaven
When done with earth below

Your friend, M. H. Beavis

Notes from Grenville Schrader...

To those who are not familiar with Dysart, it was located 2 miles north of Lochlin on the railway line and was a flag stop for passengers catching the train.

Nila Reynolds, in her book "In Quest of Yesterday", wrote that Eliazer Yerec in 1872 blazed a trail to Lochlin from the Haliburton Road.
